Donald and Izetta Camp were remembered by family, friends and community members as a standing-room only crowd attended the farewell and celebration of their lives.

The two local pioneers – who died within days of each other after 67 years of marriage -- were laid to rest on Monday following a joint service at the First Presbyterian Church in Bakersfield.

Donald Camp, Jr. spoke about how he always saw the two as a team, so it was fitting that they would go to eternity together as well.

A joint funeral service was held at First Presbyterian Church in Bakersfield on Monday for local pioneers Donald and Izetta Camp, who passed away just days of each other last week in Bakersfield, after sharing over 70 years together.

Donald Camp Sr., who with his family, operated one of the most well-known farming institutions in the area. He was born in Shafter, while his parents, Wofford Benjamin (W.B.) Camp Sr., and his wife, Georgia Anna Camp, were living at the U.S. Cotton Research Station.

Camp met his future wife when a classmate of his father, Edwin Hugh Agnew, insisted his daughter Izetta invite Donald to a local dance while Donald was in town on business.

After that first meeting, Donald and Izetta courted for several years, maintaining a long-distance relationship, with Donald coming to South Carolina frequently as he oversaw and helped operate the family's Buckfield Plantation.

Former Wasco substation Sergeant Ian Chandler, now a commander in the Kern County Sheriff's Department, died last week, one day before his 49th birthday.

No cause was given for his death on Nov. 17, according to the department.

Chandler had been promoted to the commander's post in June, after 20 years in a variety of roles.

His funeral was held on Tuesday morning at Canyon Hills Assembly of God Church in Bakersfield. Speaking at the service were Sheriff Donny Youngblood and his best friends – Sgt. Jeff Harbour, father-in-law Mel Owens and Chaplins Rollin Strode and Rick Gildez.

Previously, colleagues and friends had held a vigil for him.

Several friends posted to Facebook recognizing his friendship, guidance and accomplishments.

Local real estate broker Tilo Cortez got to know Chandler when he was in the Wasco substation.

"I can tell you the every interaction I had with him was always productive," Cortez said.. "He was well-respected in our community and took pride in looking after Approximately 600 students attended the Palm Avenue Middle School career fair held in the cafeteria last week.

Wasco Librarian Tina Garcia was one of the organization representatives.

Principal Oscar Luna opened the first-ever event Thursday, with students eagerly checking out the different career opportunities. They entered the cafeteria prepared with a list of work-related questions, which often led to more questions and longer conversations between vendors and students.

The event began with sixth graders at the business tables with questions in hand, ready to receive a stamp to prove they asked a job-related question.

Prior to the beginning of the career fair, organizations set up their tables with candy, and many also had free giveaways.

Some of the organizations represented included the U.S. Army, the city's Animal Shelter, the Kern County Sheriff's Office, Bakersfield College, Col-

Toys for Tigers gift to community

TONI DEROSA
Wasco Tribune

Candy Wilson was born in Bakersfield and raised in Shafter, but as soon as she moved to Wasco in 1955, she became a dedicated Tiger.

Wilson was the majorette at Shafter High and as an adult, she opened a baton-twirling studio in Wasco and rented space to Planet Dance. She has been involved with local community non-profits such as Toys for Tigers since 2006.

Wilson explained how her involvement with Toys for Tots through the Marine Corps led her to Toys for Tigers. "When the Marine Corps had to cut outlying communities in Kern County, such as Delano, Wasco, Lamont and Arvin, from the Toys for Tots program, several of us decided to start our own Toys for Tots and called it Toys for Tigers. Now everything donated stays in Wasco." Wilson has been involved since the beginning.

The group puts on various creative activities throughout the year to raise funds. "One of the more visible fundraisers of Toys for Tigers is 'flocking,'" Wilson shared. When driving around Wasco in June and July, pink flamingoes can be spotted on lawns throughout town. When flamingoes are placed on someone's front lawn, they are given the option of either donating to Toys for Tigers or having them removed by the committee.

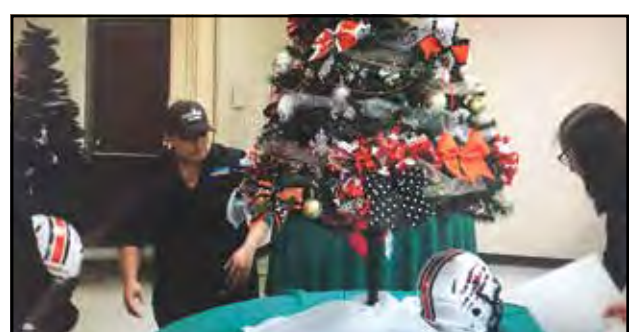

"It's a fun fundraiser and most people don't mind donating to it," Wilson said. "People donate whatever they can manage. There is no set amount."

Another annual fundraiser for Toys for Tigers is the drive-thru chicken dinner, which took place earlier this month at Grace Community Church. The committee members cooked takeout chicken plates, and customers drove up to pick up an order or two, and the proceeds went to Toys for Tigers.

"One of the best things about Toys for Tigers is that all the money stays in Wasco," Wilson said.

At Christmas time, Toys for Tigers also provides Christmas trees and lights for the trees. Local nonprofit groups and schools decorate trees which are then displayed at Barker Park Recreation Hall.

"Toys for Tigers also received 200 teddy bears from the Bakersfield Condors Teddy Bear Toss through United Way," Wilson added.

Wilson added that 100 food baskets will be donated to families this year and distributed on Saturday, Dec. 21. "We partner with the Salvation Army and obtain names and addresses of families in need. We also get applications from the schools, Head Start and the Department of Human Services," Wilson said.

Anyone who is interested in donating to Toys for Tigers may contact either Candy Wilson at 661-330-3134 or Tina Newman at 661-240-7766.

Medicare focus of senior lunch

TONI DEROSA
Wasco Tribune

Seniors were given the opportunity to learn more about Medicare medical coverage at the senior center last week.

Following a luncheon hosted by the Department of Corrections at Wasco

State Prison, seniors had the opportunity to visit vendors, who were available to provide answers to their Medicare questions.

Several brochures were on display as handouts. The "Senior Community Services Guide," provided by Assemblymember Rudy

Salas, gave phone numbers for adult daycare, Alzheimer's services, consumer information, crisis support services, legal services, rent help, utility bill pay help, general information, tax assistance, food and nutrition, elder abuse and health insurance help.

Medicare holds an open enrollment period each year so seniors have the choice to remain in their current plan or chose a new one. Seniors must be 65 years or older to sign up for Medicare.

Here are Medicare open enrollment periods for 2020:

■ California Public Employees Retirement employees and retirees, Sept. 9-Oct. 4.

■ Medicare Advantage, Oct. 15-Dec. 7. Medicare Advantage enrollees are allowed to either switch to Brenda Aguilar of Anthem Blue Cross provided Medicare information.

Aging and Adult Services was also represented at the Medicare event.

Original Medicare (plus a Part D prescription plan if they want one) or switch to a different Medicare Advantage plan.

■ Individual Market, Oct. 15-Jan. 15, 2020.

If a senior relocates, they are eligible to sign up for Medicare coverage from their new address.

The following are the Medicare benefits:

■ Part A covers in-hospital coverage. Most people who worked during their lifetime have been paying for this through payroll deductions. There are some exceptions that don't pay into Medicare while working and their Medicare premium through Social Security will be higher each month than someone who has been paying through employment.

■ Part B covers outpatient doctor visits.

■ Part C covers Senior Advantage plans, which can include dental, vision and prescription drug coverage.

■ Part D is the prescription drug coverage.

If a senior already has Parts A and B, they are entitled to enroll in Part C (Medicare Advantage).

Many plans offer zero plan premium costs, such as Anthem, Health Net and Aetna.

"Senior citizens can contact our office through Dec. 7," Brenda Aguilar, Anthem Blue Cross field sales representative, said. "Some Medicare plans will allow enrollment up to March 31, 2019. You have to call [888-476-7472] to find out which ones offer that option."

Insurance companies that offer zero monthly premiums sometimes also offer zero office visit copays for the primary care doctor and/or specialists.

More information is available at medicare.gov or by calling 888-476-7472.

Dec. 7 is the deadline for signing up for Medicare options.

TJ names October Cougars

TONI DEROSA
Wasco Tribune

Thomas Jefferson Middle School announced their October Cougars of the month for both seventh and eighth grades.

The award spotlights students who best "Respect the PAW" (perseverance, attitude and wise choices) at the school.

Seventh-grader Mariana Perez Gonzalez has a 4.0 GPA for the first quarter, but confesses math is her most-challenging subject. "I like math a lot because it's difficult," Mariana Perez Gonzalez said. "I always try my best to get good grades in math because I think that if I could pass the difficult subject, I am able to pass all my classes."

The perseverance Mariana demonstrates inside the classroom earned her honor.

Also selected for October's seventh-grade Cougar of the Month was Manuel Frausto. He has shown himself to be an educated student inside and outside the classroom. His teachers attribute his positive attitude and dedication to academics as qualities that help him succeed in the classroom.

"I am most proud of being Cougar of the Month," Manuel Frausto said.

His positive attitude inside and outside the classroom has earned him his award.

Eighth-grader Priscilla Raya earned a 4.67 GPA prior to her award.

"A successful school year at the end will look like getting straight As for all four quarters and hopefully receiving valedictorian," she said. "It will feel great because I want to know that I made my parents proud and made it worthwhile for all the late nights of homework."

Priscilla's wise choice of dedicating herself to her coursework earned her honor.

Eighth-grader Fernando Rodriguez Villanueva's progress grade report grades weren't where we wanted them to be, so he dedicated himself to improving them, and won his award for his work.

At the end of the first quarter, he stated, "I feel good about earning Cougar of the Month because it means that I did good with my grades and behavior." Fernando's perseverance and wise choices led to his honor.

Friday night football at Wasco High School is very much like the movie and television show "Friday Night Lights." And the annual Powder Puff game is no different.

Football at WHS a family affair, where everybody knows your name and who you are and cheers you on. There was a lot of respect out on the field between coaches and players. The game was a fun evening for all.

Tips on stopping scams

Wasco Tribune

Assemblymember Rudy Salas has been holding senior scam stoppers across Kern County to enlighten seniors on how to protect themselves against them.

Salas met with Wasco seniors on last week at the senior center.

One of the first things that Salas brought up was for everyone to be wary of unfamiliar area codes calling you. "Don't answer those calls," he stated. "Once the phone is answered, they can download all your information from your phone."

Salas was accompanied by Jane Kreidler, a contractor for the Licensing Board, and Hugo Flores of the Department of Insurance.

"If an unlicensed contractor does over $500 worth of work for you, we are responsible for them if you are harmed in any way," Kreidler told the audience.

She referred to an online site called Home Advisor and pointed out that they don't investigate contractors that are listed. "Make sure your contractor is licensed," she said. "Everyone should always get three bids when seeking out a contractor for any job. You should have three cost estimates and make sure they are all three doing the exact same job. Once you do that, then you decide which one to use."

Kreidler also added that when discussing money while hiring a contractor, the contractor is required to give you the subcontractor(s) names. The customer usually gives 10% down before the job begins, and if it's a large job, you should pay as large portions are completed and when the job is done, it should be inspected unless the city has to come out and inspect to pass the project. The final payment should be made when all the inspections are done.

"A contract needs to be very detailed," Kreidler added. "Whatever you want done needs to be written in the contract or the job may not be completed to your satisfaction."

She also mentioned that if the owner doesn't feel the building inspector really took a good look at the job, then the owner needs to contact the supervisor and let the supervisor know he/she is unhappy with the inspection done.

"In addition, the contract should have stated in it that the old material needs to be hauled away," she added.

Kreidler said that purchasing solar by seniors is not recommended, especially in the Central Valley. Many people are talked into financing their solar energy system, and if the owner sells the house, that solar contract will also need to be sold.

More help is available from the State's General Contractors Board at 949-371-8001.

In addition to warnings about contractors, Flores, from the Department of Insurance, advised seniors to be careful when purchasing annuities because the money might not be available right away.

Anyone selling life insurance cannot make the call to your home; the agent must visit you personally and hand you a business card with their license number on it. "They must also give you at least 24 hours to think the policy over before you sign off on it," Flores said. "No one should feel pressured."

"Don't ever pay cash, use a check and make it payable only to the company, not the agent doing the selling," Flores warned.

Flores added that if seniors change their mind after 30 days, they have the right to do so without penalty. "Seniors are given extra time."

Flores' parting words encouraged drivers to take a driving course and have their insurance premium lowered. "This is a bargain for everyone," he said.

One of the seniors asked Salas about the ramifications of the PG&E bankruptcy.

"There are three choices for PG&E," Salas said. "One, they can break it up into many smaller companies; two, a hedge fund is interested in buying them; and three, the state can take it over."

He stated that a decision has not been made yet as to what PG&E is going to do.

limelight, opting instead to enjoy helping people without all of the accolades. According to son Donald Jr., Donald Sr. said, "Work hard and be good at what you do, but don't have a big ego and put yourself first above everything."

Local farmer Stan Wilson said that he dealt extensively with the family's John Deere enterprises and said, "I have never heard anything but good regarding Don. Everyone I have talked to mentions that Donald is a true gentleman."

The comments locally have a recurring theme to them, with most everyone saying, "a gentleman and a real lady," when describing Donald and Izetta.

as a couple that "always thought of others, and never turned away from a need," said Pastor Jeff Chandler.

Chandler told the audience of the time when his daughter was doing a History Day project that involved agriculture, which he knew nothing about. He was told to ask that Don Camp, he would probably know what it is. "Well, he spent an hour with my daughter, patiently explaining to her the subject, and she ended up with an A."

Their daughter Georgia Bell, who lives in South Carolina, said that her kids remember their yearly trips to California to stay on the ranch. "I also remember the trips that they took back to us in South Carolina. We would have such a time."

Donald and Izetta were married in 1952, after courting for a few years. Their first date was arranged when Izetta's father, who was a Clemson classmate of Don's father, suggested that she ask Don to a local dance while he was in South Carolina on business. That one date was the start of a love affair that lasted the rest of their lives.

They raised five children, and the recurring theme in the life of every child and grandchild who spoke at the service was the love that they had for each other. God and their family.

They leave a legacy that lives on in their children, grandchildren and great-grandchildren. Their example greatly touched others outside of their family also.

Lucas Whooten said that he frequently would go to their John Deere dealership and the way Don, when he was there, and his sons would treat their customers was special. "It didn't matter if you were buying a couple of parts, or if you were buying three tractors, you were treated the same, and always with respect."

Former Shafter City Manager Scott Hurlbert said that he knew Don and Izetta, and they were a special couple. "I dealt with his son Edwin more, but I thought the entire family was special."

Camp was a farmer, gaining numerous accolades through the years, as well as an owner, with his family, of several

John Deere dealerships, including Kern Machinery. He also was an avid fisherman and hunter, and loved spending time with his family.

Izetta was remembered as a southern belle that was transplanted to California, but never lost that southern charm.

"She was a special lady. She was just as comfortable talking to a dignitary as she was a neighbor, and also treated both of them the same, with respect," said son Clayton. Tales also abounded about her skill when it came to navigating the way from their ranch off of Merced Avenue, to the schools in Shafter, 12 miles away. "She was always on time, every time. I think she knew how to get us there in the quickest way possible, knowing the way to go the fastest. "Yes, my mother was an accomplished race car driver," joked Edwin.

Everyone who spoke on Monday, and those who have commented in the time since their passing, has mentioned that the couple were always quick to help those in need, but never expected honors. They and shied away from the limelight, preferring to let their actions and deeds speak for them.

the residents of Wasco. He always had a smile. He loved what he did and lived life to the fullest. We will miss him dearly."

Vincent Martinez, a professional photographer in Wasco, also worked with Chandler.

"I had the privilege of working with Ian for 12 years and having him as a friend for nearly 20 years. Ian was the epitome of what a police officer and a friend should be. He was intelligent, compassionate and full of integrity."

Chandler leaves his wife, Melanie, and three children.

OBITUARIES

Donald Max Camp Sr.
July 29, 1925 –
Nov. 12, 2019
Farmer, businessman, innovator and beloved family man

A joint funeral service was officiated by Pastor Jeff Chandler Nov. 25, 2019, at First Presbyterian Church in Bakersfield for Donald Max Camp Sr., 94, and his wife, Izetta Agnew Camp, 92, who died peacefully at home within days of each other surrounded by their family. Private interment will follow.

Don was one of two children born to cotton pioneer Wofford Benjamin (W.B.) Camp Sr. and Georgia Anna App Camp while his parents were living on the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Shafter Cotton Research Experiment Station. The family moved often while his father worked for the USDA. When they returned to Kern County, his parents enlisted the help of Dust Bowl migrants to construct a home using well-insulated box cars east of Shafter. There as a young boy, he learned how to drive a tractor.

Don attended Kern County Union High School where he was on the track team. He attended Clemson College, then an all-male military school in South Carolina before deciding to enlist. He needed his parent's signature to enter the Army Air Corps. He was a fighter pilot during World War II running training flights between New York, Florida and Texas.

After the war, he returned to college and graduated summa cum laude in three years with a degree in animal husbandry. His ambition was to become a cattleman. He helped run livestock in the Kern River Valley, but soon found out he could better support the "cowboy habit" through cotton and potato farming.

While traveling back and forth between Kern County and South Carolina, where his family operated Buckfield Plantation in Yemassee, SC, he accepted an invitation from Izetta Agnew to attend a dance with her at Winthrop College. Her father, a Clemson classmate of Don's father, insisted she write a letter inviting him as he likely didn't know many people in the region. He courted her for several years. After a six-week engagement, the couple wed in 1952 and their union was blessed with five children.

Compassionate and caring, Don often helped Dust Bowl families who arrived with optimism but little else. He empathized with them, having moved around so much as a child. There was always a steady stream of stranded motorists seeking help at the back door of their ranch house near the highway. Don invited every person in, including a jail escapee.

Long after the war, his love for flying never diminished. He flew his own plane, enjoyed fly fishing and bird hunting, and after their children were raised, Don and Izetta traveled the world together.

Quiet, unassuming and a man of humility, Don was a large presence in the agriculture industry and his contributions were innumerable. He championed the family farming operations founded by his father by leading them into the 21st century while embracing industry changes with innovative practices and pioneering crop management.

Along with his sons, D.M. Camp & Sons, under Don's leadership, sought to be a leader in state and national agricultural issues while advocating for local, state and federal water projects and in supporting farmers here in the Central Valley.

Today the company farms nuts, citrus, grapes and vegetables in Kern County. In addition to the John Deere engine distributorship serving the western United States, the family owns and operates John Deere Agriculture dealerships serving the Southern San Joaquin Valley, as well as the high desert area of eastern Kern County.

In 2004 Don, patriarch of the longtime farming family, was honored by the California chapter of the American Society of Farm Managers and Rural Appraisers as their Distinguished Agriculturalist of the Year. "There are a lot of people who do what I do. We've run our farming operation with some awfully good people over the years," he told The Bakersfield Californian, underscoring his modest manner. His values and ethics made him widely admired.

Outside of work, with a servant's heart, Don gave of his time and resources to Mercy Hospital, Bakersfield Christian High School, Calcot, Cotton Incorporated, the American Cancer Society and First Presbyterian Church. He was a member of Stockdale Country Club and the Bakersfield Rotary Club, and served on the boards of Kern View Foundation, the Boy Scouts, Camp Fire Girls and the Quest Club, as well as committees of the California Cotton Study and Cal Poly School of Agriculture. For 31 years Don served as president of the Cawelo Water District, as well as California Planting Cotton Seed Distributors.

A man of the soil, he often said, "I just like to farm."

Although accomplished in many ways, Don never sought accolades. "Work hard and be good at what you do, but don't have a big ego and put yourself first above everything," he said.

Don and Izetta truly enjoyed each other's company. By each other's side in life for 67 years of marriage, now they are together again for eternity, after passing just a few days apart. Their reputation and integrity meant everything to them, and together they instilled that in their family. Don was preceded in death by his parents, and brother Wofford Benjamin Camp Jr. He is survived by his sister-in-law, Floride Findley; children Georgia Bell, Don Jr. and his wife Debbie, Edwin and his wife Kaye, Clayton and his wife Karrie and Carolyn Pandol and her husband Jack. He is survived by 13 grandchildren, 13 great-grandchildren and a 14th on the way.

Special thanks to Juana Mendoza, Maria Leal, Maria Vasquez, Aida Mendoza, and Ira Ali for their care.

Izetta Agnew Camp
Sept. 13, 1927 –
Nov. 16, 2019

Beloved wife, mother and grandmother

A joint funeral service officiated by Pastor Jeff Chandler was held Nov.25, 2019, at First Presbyterian Church in Bakersfield for Izetta Agnew Camp, 92, and her husband Donald Max Camp Sr., 94, who died peacefully at home within days of each other surrounded by their family. Private interment will follow.

Izetta was the fourth of five children born to Edwin Hugh Agnew and his wife, Izetta Pruitt Agnew, in Starr, S.C., where he was a distinguished farmer. Together with her brothers Pruitt and Harry, and sisters Betty and Floride, she grew up on the family farm. She attended Furman University, known then as Greenville Woman's College, before graduating from Winthrop College.

While at Winthrop, and at the insistence of her father who was a Clemson classmate of W.B. Camp Sr., she invited Camp's son Don to a dance on one of his business trips from Kern County to Yemassee, S.C., where his family maintained Buckfield Plantation, as he didn't know many people in the area.

He accepted and courted Izetta for several years. After college, she taught classroom music. During their courtship, she never knew when he would return to visit, but she would drop everything nonetheless to spend time with her beau, exchanging tender love letters, which they kept.

After a six-week engagement, the couple wed in 1952. Their union was blessed with five children. Izetta often joked that she doubted Don would have married a South Carolinian had it not been for all the oyster beds and great swamp fishing there. They moved to California, which she had never visited, and she never lost her sweet southern drawl.

By Don's account, his bride wasn't much of a cook at the beginning of their marriage, but over time she became quite accomplished in the kitchen feeding her large family. She and Don organized a food and wine group with friends and enjoyed traveling once everyone had left the nest. She and her husband were lifelong members of First Presbyterian Church, and they enjoyed their years of membership at Stockdale Country Club

Izetta had an innate ability to make a stranger feel like her best friend. Generous with her heart, she was quick to offer her help whenever she saw or heard of someone or family in need on the farm. She kept an immaculate home, was always impeccably dressed, and was the epitome of southern charm and grace.

Izetta used her green thumb to cultivate her garden, which still includes her blooming "Izetta's Bright Starr" rose. It was a gift from her family, and her yard was the envy of her neighborhood. Her grandmother raised peafowl in South Carolina and she did so as well. The original peacocks at Hart Park were donated by Izetta

Believing in the importance of giving back to the agriculture industry and the community where she flourished, she delighted in helping others, whether it was Assistance League, the Bakersfield Museum of Art, PEO, Daughters of the American Revolution, Town & Country Garden Club, Mercy Hospital Auxiliary Board or her church. In 2015 she was given the California Agricultural Leadership Foundation's Common Threads award, which honors women in agriculture.

Married 67 years, Izetta and Don's devotion to one another and their family grew sweeter as the years went by. They truly loved being together, side by side in life, and now together in death.

Izetta was preceded in death by her parents, sister Betty, and brothers. Those left to cherish her memory are her sister Floride Findley, her children Georgia Bell, Don Jr. and his wife Debbie, Edwin and his wife Kaye, Clayton and his wife Karrie, and Carolyn Pandol and her husband Jack. She is also survived by 13 grandchildren, 13 great-grandchildren, and a 14th on the way.

Heartfelt thanks to Juana Mendoza, Maria Leal, Maria Vasquez, Aida Mendoza, and Ira Ali for their tireless and compassionate care. In lieu of flowers, Izetta's memory may be honored with a donation to Assistance League Bakersfield, 1924 Q St., Bakersfield 93301, Bakersfield Museum of Art - attention Blue Ribbon Circle, 1930 R St., Bakersfield, CA 93301, or the UCLA Alzheimers and Dementia Care Program, 200 UCLA Medical Plaza -- Suite 365A, Los Angeles 90095. alifesstory.com

City's festival of fun

TONI DEROSA
Wasco Tribune

The second part of this year's Wasco Festival kicked off Friday morning in downtown Wasco, with floats, marching bands, motor vehicles of all sorts and sizes, horses, and even a mule.

The parade on Saturday included groups from several local groups such as the elementary school district bands, high school band, churches, equestrian groups, floats and a lot of walkers.

Onlookers lined the parade route from D Street to 7th to Poplar, finishing at Barker Park, where the festival was already underway.

Grand Marshals Ken and Tina Newman rode through the parade in a buggy drawn by a mule.

The crowd got a big laugh watching the mule. "The donkey was funny," young Jose Garcia said.

2019 Rose Queen Elisa Flores and her court rode on a shiny float.

Also riding close to the beginning of the parade were Grand Marshals Danny and Petra Rueda in the Rueda's vehicle.

The Glennville rodeo queens on their horses were highlighted by one with roses around its neck, while another had a small drape of colorful flowers.

In the middle of the parade, several members of the City Council rode in Engine #1, greeting and waving to the crowd of sidewalks.

The Wasco Union Elementary School District received good news with the 2017-2018 Attention 2 Attendance report.

The district ranked first out of four local school districts who utilize the Attention 2 Attendance software program to track chronic absenteeism.

At the board's meeting on Oct. 8, Assistant Superintendent Brad Maberry stated that the district has made attendance a high priority in order to minimize student absences.

"This is not a state-mandated report," Maberry said. "Several school districts subscribe to this program to track their absenteeism. At this time, I'm not sure all the districts which use the system."

District Title I teachers Jennifer Fendrick and Teri Acosta presented the A2A report to the board and attendees.

Council to invest in safety

Followup to student injury in accident

Hailey Medrano.

TONI DEROSA

In response to an accident that occurred in February when a student was hit by a car while walking to Palm Avenue Elementary School, the City Council took action Tuesday night on making streets safer for pedestrians.

The city will pay $11,000 for a study to improve safety, which includes protecting children walking to and from school. The council unanimously approved the city manager entering into an agreement with Ruetters & Schuler to perform a pedestrian crossing investigation at three locations:

- Griffith Avenue between Highway 46 and Margalo Street
- Palm Avenue and Margalo Street
- Peters Street and Krista Street.

These three sites represent streets surrounding Palm Avenue Middle School and James Forrest Elementary School. Councilmember John Pallares requested that the council look into not only adding crosswalks to the streets, but also adding a stop sign, street lights or a blinking sign.

HOW TO ADVERTISE EFFECTIVELY AND ECONOMICALLY

Our sales representatives are pleased to help you compose the most effective ad at a minimum cost.
Here are two key points to remember about your ads:

1. If it's an item you're selling, remember to include as much information as possible. The more potential buyers know about the item you have for sale, the more interest they have in calling you.

2. Our reputation for Classified Advertising results is excellent. But not every potential buyer will read your ad on the same day. The majority of our private party advertisers take advantage of our discount rates. This simply means that you order your ad for two consecutive issues, but should you get the results you desire before the ad has expired, you may call and cancel the ad and be refunded for the days the ad did not appear.
